

Allotment Gallery

From spring through to summer an urban allotment site becomes a dynamic outdoor art gallery displaying nature-inspired, eco-aware artworks created by invited artists.

Over five months four artists will be invited to create and install artworks at Richmond Street allotments in Stoke. Responding to allotment culture & environment, their work will be displayed in and around the allotment site. The natural cycles of planting, nurturing and harvesting, along with eco-concerns, will shape the finished artworks. Workshops for local children and adults, reflecting each artist's theme, will be hosted by Festival Stoke artists Anne and Rachel. At the end of each month there will be an exhibition day for each artist, culminating in a big Allotment Gallery Celebration Day in September, with all four art installations in situ.
